

SEVENTH FINALLY
CAN STRETCH LEGSRegiment Reaches Spartanburg, Glad to Escape Irksome Railway Coaches.

NONE ILL; NONE INJURED

Men Go to Work With Rush and Quickly Put Camp in Condition.

Special Despatch to Sun City.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Sept. 13.—All Spartanburg turned out this afternoon to welcome the Seventh Infantry, the dandy command of the Twenty-seventh Division. The regiment arrived in three sections, but unfortunately in reversed order. The first section to leave New York, composed of the regimental staff, the regimental band, machine gun companies and mounts for the staff, was the last to get here, arriving so late in the afternoon that all will remain in their tents sleeping until morning.

Commanders of all three sections report a journey untroubled by a single mishap or case of illness. Every man was up and doing when the first two sections rolled onto the long siding at Camp Wadsworth, and the rest of the regiment followed by the supply train, and was there to transport their equipment and luggage to Camp 13, located in the prettiest grove in the entire reservation.

In less than an hour after reaching the siding the troops of the first two sections were busy at work with pickaxe and shovel smoothing down camp streets and erecting tents. Both of these sections were under canvas before mess was served at sunset and all were snugly bedded down in their wall tents and ready for taps at 9 o'clock. The boys had perhaps the hardest afternoon's work they ever put in, excepting days on the Mexican border.

Could Not Leave Trains.

The first section arrived shortly after noon in twenty-six cars and was composed of Companies H, I, K, L and M. The train was in charge of Major Macfarlane of the Second Battalion. The section that followed in two hours was in charge of Major Schuyler and was made up of Companies A, B, C, D, E and F. There were twenty-five cars to this train. The only complaint heard was a grumble from the men over the war Department order to keep the soldiers in their coaches from the time they left New York until they arrived at Camp Wadsworth. There was no leaving the trains and stretching of limbs at stops on the way, although at nearly all of the towns where pauses were made the residents turned out to pass fruits and fried chicken to the men cooped in the sleepers.

The orderly and systematic manner in which the equipment of the Seventh was unloaded and transported from railroad siding to the camp site two miles distant was due to the splendid work of the headquarters supply train, in charge of Capt. Robertson of Vanderbilt college fame, Lieut. Col. Sternberger, divisional quartermaster, supervised the entire job and there wasn't a hitch or accident to mar the splendid work done. Lieut. Col. Maloney, chief surgeon, Lieut. Col. J. Mayhew Wainwright, Inspector General, were at the station to greet the newcomers.

Greeted by Gen. O'Ryan. When Major Gen. O'Ryan heard that the first section of the Seventh was unloading at the camp siding he left his headquarters and, accompanied by his aid, Lieut. Franchot, motored out to the station. He warmly greeted the officers he met there. Col. Willard C. Fisk will pay his official call on Gen. O'Ryan in the morning.

It was a far cry from Fifth avenue to the thorn and bramble strewn grove into which the boys of the Seventh were led by the guide who met them at the station. The two mile hike was made over roads cluttered with army trucks and contractors' mule teams and dump carts and covered with two inches of chokling dust. The unanimous verdict of the hikers upon reaching the camp site was, "Say, fellows, this beats being cooped up in a stuffy armory forty days."

Two privates in Company M who had done kitchen police details on the way down were among the first to fall to chop stumps from their tent site. They worked with a will, all the while exchanging cheery queries as, "Do we dine at Rector's or Sherry to night?"

These happy but lowly privates were Walter A. Danforth and Arthur Robertson, two of the best known newspaper men in New York city. The 40 degree drop in the temperature here has set the entire camp to shivering. Very few of the men now here have received their service coats, and those who do sentry duty at night are suffering keenly. Many of these sentries walked their posts last night with blankets draped about them. Until last Monday the mercury frequently touched the 50 degree mark at midnight. Then the change came and it has been as low as 44.

The First Battalion, or the Signal Corps, reached Spartanburg at midnight and remained in its cars until morning. The Twelfth Regiment is due here Saturday and its camp site, not far from the Seventh, is ready and waiting.

Mrs. Lyons Finds Missing Will.

The will of Capt. Timothy Augustine Lyons, U. S. N., retired, was found yesterday after a long search by his widow. It was among some papers left by the Captain with the Manhattan Safe Deposit Company. The will leaves stocks and bonds, value not stated, entirely to the widow.

DIED.

COOMBS.—Suddenly, on Thursday, September 13, Jerome W. Coombs, age of William J. Coombs.

FUNERAL.—Margaret, "THE FUNERAL CHURCH," Campbell, 1970 Broadway, Friday, 10 o'clock.

HILDRETH.—Suddenly, at Post-Graduate Hospital, on Thursday, September 13, Walter E. Hildreth, age 61.

FUNERAL.—Services at Church of Blessed Sacrament, Broadway and Seventy-first street, Saturday, September 15, 10 A. M. Interment private. Please omit flowers.

MILLS.—Passed to the higher life, Thursday, September 13, at his late residence, 115-122nd street, Arthur M. Mills, husband of Elizabeth Mills.

SERVICES.—"THE FUNERAL CHURCH," Campbell, 1970 Broadway, Saturday afternoon, 2 P. M. Chicago and Boston papers please copy.

MEYER.—In Providence, on the 13th instant, Mary Lawrence, wife of the late William E. Meyer of Providence, in the city of Providence, R. I. Interment private. Please omit flowers.

PAINE.—Francis E. H. at his home on Riverside Drive, Thursday, September 13, at his forty-sixth year.

FUNERAL.—Services at "THE FUNERAL CHURCH," Campbell, 1970 Broadway, Friday, 1 P. M. Interment private. Englewood, N. J. Please omit flowers.

SENATORS' REPORT
FAVORS SUFFRAGEAmendment Will Come Up for Vote in December.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The Susan B. Anthony resolution for nationwide woman suffrage by constitutional amendment was reported favorably to-day by the Senate Suffrage Committee and will take place on the calendar for a vote at the session beginning in December.

At about the time the resolution was being reported six banner bearers of the Woman's party were arrested in front of the White House. They later were admitted to bail for trial to-morrow. Before the arrival of the police a sailor tore down a banner carried by one of the women.

Whether the suffrage resolution can command the necessary two-thirds vote in the Senate and later in the House is a question. President Wilson so far has refused to put the influence of the Administration behind it, although urged to adopt it as a war measure. Suffrage supporters, however, regard getting it out of committee with favorable odds as a forward step and they welcome the opportunity to get a record vote on it in the open.

Without delay or objection the Senate passed Senator Shepley's bill authorizing the Hawaiian Legislature to give women who have property and other qualifications the right to vote in territorial elections. It also authorizes the Legislature to submit to the Territory the question of giving women unrestricted suffrage there.

ABERDEENS BUSY AT NEWPORT.

Titled Couple Seek Aid for Irish Children.

Special Despatch to Sun City.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 13.—Lord and Lady Aberdeen of Scotland, who are making a short visit here, toured the city this morning. Early in the afternoon they were the luncheon guests of Mrs. Stuart Duncan, who entertained informally at Bonnetcrest. Later in the afternoon Lady Aberdeen attended an exhibition of canned fruits and vegetables given in the Civic League House under the auspices of Mrs. Harold Brown and Miss Edith Wetmore of the Food Conservation Committee. Lord and Lady Aberdeen then attended a tea given in the evening. Mrs. J. J. Pierson in Bellevue avenue Lady Aberdeen will speak on her work among the children in Ireland, and Irish ladies will be sold to help the work.

Mrs. Frederick Nelson, who slipped from the roof of the camp and was badly injured, is recovering at her home. Mrs. Nelson, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home. Mrs. Nelson, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home.

Mrs. Margaret Steward of Garden City, N. Y., and Mrs. George Henry Warren have gone to Garden City, N. Y., to visit Mrs. Steward's mother. Mrs. Steward, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home. Mrs. Steward, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home.

Mrs. J. J. Wysocki gave a luncheon at Grey-stone to her friends. Mrs. Wysocki, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home. Mrs. Wysocki, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home.

NOTES OF THE SOCIAL WORLD.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Aldrich, who have been passing the summer in Southampton, have decided to live permanently in Great Neck, L. I., where they have been building for the last year a new home which will be called Snug Harbor. Mr. Aldrich will give up their apartment at 985 Fifth avenue and will go to Great Neck on September 20.

Miss Joy Waldron Williams, a daughter of the late Waldron Williams, will be married to W. Ross Proctor, Jr., on September 29 at noon at Stone House, the country place of her mother in Great Neck, L. I. Mr. Proctor, who is recovering at her home, is recovering at her home.

Mrs. Ernest R. Ade and Miss Geraldine Ade have left Northeast Harbor, Me., for their home in Tuxedo Park.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Reynolds and his wife arrived at the Ritz-Carlton yesterday from Newport. They will start to-day for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The marriage of Mrs. Hilda Reeder of this city and Grosvenor B. Clarkson, secretary of the Council of National Defense, will take place to-day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Flint in Providence, R. I.

ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED.

Mrs. Frederick Charles Prentiss has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Frederica Charlotte Prentiss, to John Theodore Hanemann, son of the late Henry William Hanemann and Mrs. Hanemann of this city. Mr. Hanemann is an architect and is a member of the American Institute of Architects, Columbia and Squadron A clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Boston of South Orange, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Barbara A. Boston, to Henry Maxwell Dyckman, also of Orange. Mr. Dyckman was graduated from Princeton and now with the Naval Reserve in Newport, R. I. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Douglas Bacon of Bath, Me., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bel Bacon, to Lieut. Henry Sanford Thorne, U. S. N. R.

The engagement is announced of Miss Ruth Parley Clark, daughter of Elmer L. Clark, clerk of the Children's court in East Twenty-second street, to Alonso N. H. Smith of this city, who recently enlisted in the Naval Reserve. Miss Clark is a cousin of Cardinal Parley.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard E. Cane of Auburn have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Cane, to William Penn Whitehouse, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Treat Whitehouse of Portland, Me. Mr. Whitehouse is a graduate of Harvard, 1915, and is serving with the Navy Aviation Corps.

Did Not Know He Had $108,721.

Sydney K. Russell, 19 years old and a grandson of the founder of the Russell Knapp-Felt Deluxe Six Dollars.

Did Not Know He Had $108,721.

Sydney K. Russell, 19 years old and a grandson of the founder of the Russell Knapp-Felt Deluxe Six Dollars.

Did Not Know He Had $108,721.

Sydney K. Russell, 19 years old and a grandson of the founder of the Russell Knapp-Felt Deluxe Six Dollars.

BRONZE DOOR SOLD
AT MERE THOUSANDArt Objects Go for Song at Auction in Famous Gambling House.

The catalogue makers for the auction sale of the bronze door at 38 West Thirty-third street yesterday bulleted better than they knew when they put an extra "d" in "Dogs" in the description of No. 700. "The wonderful real sculptured bronze door from the wine cellar of the Doges Palace" in Venice it read, and the door certainly proved a dog. Mystery that it was, it still remained a mystery, for not the combined efforts of Auctioneer C. E. Smith, the press of New York and a horde of curiously seekers could discover the name of the man to whom this beautiful and priceless door, which has looked down upon the gambling revels of some of the wealthiest men and the wildest politicians of the nation, was knocked down for the bagatelle of $1,000.

Smith confessed himself frankly stumped by the lot. "I don't know what to start it at," he said. "It's a value no one knows, but it's great. The Baron Monaco, or the Prince, if that's his title, sent over to buy it for $500. Ridiculous! I'm going to start it at $500."

But there were no takers, and he had to let it down to $200 from which the bids gradually rose to $1,000. A portly, suave, middle aged man with graying hair and a twinkle in his eye, the individual who made the $1,000 offer and carelessly peeled off a $500 yellow-backed from a huge roll to pay the necessary deposit.

Ceiling Brings Only $975.

The door was put up at the end of a long day of selling, in the course of which furnishings which, according to the appraisal of the Knickerbocker auctioneers, never cost less than $250,000, went for less than $18,000. The canvas ceiling, painted with scenes designed by the late Stanford White, that $25,000 ceiling in the main gambling room on the second floor, from which exquisite figures of Adam and Eve looked down from innocent flowery banks upon Frank Carroll, "Little Tim" Sullivan, Jesse Lewisohn and other well known men who fingered the cards and made or lost thousands over the faro layout—that ceiling went for $975. And the faithful old negro caretaker, Tom Brown, who has lived on in the house with its memories since Jerome raided it and the reveals ceased, murmured as he saw the auctioneer's aids begin to rip down Adam and Eve.

"It's such a shame to see these beautiful articles go for a song," he said. "I don't know what to start it at," he said. "It's a value no one knows, but it's great. The Baron Monaco, or the Prince, if that's his title, sent over to buy it for $500. Ridiculous! I'm going to start it at $500."

At this point a man who had bid against "A. Zusi" beckoned the reporters. "Tell you what," he said confidentially, "the buyer's really George D. Leary of Southampton. He's going to put it in his show place down there."

Confronted with this statement the new possessor of the bronze door gave a start of surprise that was either very real or well simulated.

"How'd you find my name?" he inquired. "Now, I don't want any publicity. It was really Mr. Leary who bought it. But a feeling of distrust still permeated the hearers, and Auctioneer Smith's belief that he was neither A. Zusi nor George D. Leary, but an agent of the labor of eight Swiss carvers for two straight years and which cost at least $20,000, was sold for $250.

Masterpieces Sold Cheap.

So the sale went—water colors from the hands of masters for a dollar or two, teakwood tables from China for $10 or so, and a ten foot black bear skin from the labor of eight Swiss carvers for two straight years and which cost at least $20,000, was sold for $250.

Cartier, the decorator, bought this, as he did the Stanford White ceiling. J. J. Corning secured an electric elevator with wonderful hand carved walnut walls and doors for $250, a price which the auctioneer, remarked in sad tones, would surely make the Otis company weep.

Allen—Winans. Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Wednesday afternoon in the Little Church Around the Corner, East Twenty-ninth street, of Henry Crosby Allen, former Representative of the Sixth New Jersey District, and Mrs. Anna M. Winans of Little Falls. The couple are now touring New England. They will live in Little Falls.

OBITUARIES.

FRANCIS E. H. PAINE.

Francis Brinley Hebard Paine, a widely known electrical and consulting engineer, who designed the Ontario Light and Power Company plant at Niagara Falls, one of the first plants to be erected there, harnessing the immense power, died yesterday in his home, 131 Riverside Drive.

Services will be held at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth street, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will follow at Englewood, N. J.

Mr. Paine was born in Chicago, a son of Charles Paine, a noted civil engineer and railroad executive. He gained his electrical and engineering education with the Westinghouse Electric Company, and afterwards organized the firm of Paine, McCellan & Campion, engineers, of this city and Philadelphia, with which he remained until his death. Mr. Paine is survived by his wife and two children.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

WALTER E. HILDRETH.

Walter E. Hildreth, president of the Urban Wine Company and a director of the American Wine Growers Association, died suddenly yesterday at the Post-Graduate Hospital. Mr. Hildreth was president and one of the directors of the Monmouth County Horse Show Association of New Jersey. His home was at 102 West Seventy-fifth street. Mr. Hildreth was for many years a leading figure at the fashionable horse show gatherings at Monmouth.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

OBITUARIES.

FRANCIS E. H. PAINE.

Francis Brinley Hebard Paine, a widely known electrical and consulting engineer, who designed the Ontario Light and Power Company plant at Niagara Falls, one of the first plants to be erected there, harnessing the immense power, died yesterday in his home, 131 Riverside Drive.

Services will be held at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth street, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will follow at Englewood, N. J.

Mr. Paine was born in Chicago, a son of Charles Paine, a noted civil engineer and railroad executive. He gained his electrical and engineering education with the Westinghouse Electric Company, and afterwards organized the firm of Paine, McCellan & Campion, engineers, of this city and Philadelphia, with which he remained until his death. Mr. Paine is survived by his wife and two children.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

WALTER E. HILDRETH.

Walter E. Hildreth, president of the Urban Wine Company and a director of the American Wine Growers Association, died suddenly yesterday at the Post-Graduate Hospital. Mr. Hildreth was president and one of the directors of the Monmouth County Horse Show Association of New Jersey. His home was at 102 West Seventy-fifth street. Mr. Hildreth was for many years a leading figure at the fashionable horse show gatherings at Monmouth.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.

In 1913 when Beachey was making some of his bare fights the aviator struck Miss Ruth Hildreth, daughter of Mr. Hildreth, and a young girl companion while they were standing on the roof of the navy hangar at Hammondsport. The machine in which Beachey was flying swept both girls from the roof and killed them.